CYPRUS WINE HISTORY

According to the Guinness Book of World Records, Cyprus is home to the oldest wine ever produced in the world.

Archaeological evidence suggests that winemaking has been practiced on the island for at least five and a half thousands years.

Several wall mosaics and pots around the country, indicate the significant role wine had during the Roman period.

Wine or “Cyprus nama” or nectar of the Gods, was used in religious rituals for the Goddess of love Aphrodite. This was a sweet dessert wine made out of sun-dried grapes.

During the 12th century the wine was renamed to Commantaria after the area of Gran Commanderie, which was the headquarters of the Knights Templars.

Famous privileged Quotes for Cyprus wine

King Richard the Lionheart of England:

“The wine of kings and the king of wines.”

King Philip Augustus of France:

“Apostle of wines”
